Qualifications & Training

There are no set qualifications to become an Apprentice Bricklayer with Story Homes but it helps to have GCSEs (A* - C) in Maths and English or equivalent in order to progress on the apprenticeship. We don't expect apprentices to have worked on a site but we are always keen to hear from those that already have construction site experience, which can be gained by working as a labourer.

Everyone who works on our sites must hold a Construction Skills Certification Scheme (CSCS) card or equivalent and must attend and pass all other health and safety tests as part of their role. We support all apprentices with gaining these standards.

As an apprentice working with Story Homes, we expect you to have:

- A responsible attitude towards work safety, especially at height
- A commitment to quality work – shown through your dedication to your apprenticeship and in the work that you do
- A passion for practical skills
- The ability to follow specific plans and instructions precisely
- The ability to work in a well organised and accurate way
- Good team working skills
